This letter is being written in response to your statements of being tired of going to court hearings, feeling like the litigation process is getting expensive, and you not clearly understanding what I am seeking in an attempt to continue raising our children.

First and foremost I understand your feelings of exhaustion and financial burden as a result of this litigation process. However, I am determined to do whatever it takes to have an equally balanced relationship with our children so that we may raise them up to be honest, good-willed, integral, and right-standing people as we intended when we bore them to this Earth. I believe that the children need an equal amount of time with both of us and no unnecessary financial burden needs to be place on either parent. I have attempted to work with you many times to come to agreements outside of the courts, but you have continued to show that you are not interested in any plans that do not involve me paying you unnecessary child support. As of today, January 27, 2013 the day of this letter, I am currently getting the kids every other Saturday night thru Thursday morning and every Wednesday after school to Thursday morning for school drop off. I have told you multiple times that I would like to split our parenting time equally with a 50/50 split. As of today, I am currently ordered to pay to you $407.00/month in child support. In considering the circumstances I must be able to provide and care for our children at our home which has become financially difficult with the current order set in place. If you and I are thinking of what is best for our children and what is in their best interest, I believe they should be well taken care of at both homes. Our children deserve the best and they do not deserve to have either of their parents placed in unfair, difficult, or disabling positions to raise them if there is no concern for safety, neglect, or abuse. In addition I believe that our children should have the opportunity to have equal amounts of time to spend with both parents. I have been in our children's lives and we have a strong bond of love between us that will only grow stronger. They will be so torn to know that they did not have the opportunity to have an equal amount of time with their father or that I have been forced in a financially hardening situation to care for them in our home.

So that you may clearly understand what I am seeking, I am respectfully asking you to agree to a 50/50 split parenting time schedule without any child support order set, and a 50/50 split for medical and extracurricular activities costs. The parenting days are completely negotiable. Personally I would like for both of us to have interaction with the children every week, because I think seven days is a long time to go without seeing the children. In regards to tax dependency exemptions I am willing to agree to claim Ivan as a dependent until expiration and allow you to claim Imonee and Isaiah until expiration if you are able to agree to this parenting schedule. Equality and safety are in the best interest of our children and if you are not able to agree to this proposal, I will be left with the impression that you do not desire equality in opportunity for our children and do not have their best interest at heart. As a result, I will continue to pursue this matter through litigation because our children deserve it and are more than worth it. I do ask that if you do not agree with this proposal to provide me with a written explanation explaining why. Hopefully this will open a continuing dialogue between us where we will be able to continue successfully raising our children. If I have not heard from you regarding this proposal by February 25, 2013 I will assume you have no interest in working with me and continue with litigation.

Respectfully,

Lamont Evans
